WHITE WOLF PUBLISHING CATALOG

In early 1994, White Wolf launched an exciting, new venture in publishing. We attribute our rapid growth and success to readers who acknowledge a commitment to bringing them the very best imaginative writing.

Our reputation as one of the foremost publishers in the horror and fiction genres rests upon the talent of our authors, many of whom have established a dedicated audience. We take pride in our ability to offer readers the finest in contemporary fiction.

The Eternal Champion novels by fantasy legend Michael Moorcock and the Borderlands anthologies of dark fiction edited by Tom Monteleone are two of our most popular series under the imprint name Borealis. Our World of Darkness titles, based on storytelling games by White Wolf Game Studio, promise to continue to thrill fans of dark fantasy.

White Wolf Publishing continually strives to bring innovative fiction to our readers and has successfully provided an impressive roster of releases for 1995 and 1996. In March of 1995, we release the first in a series of novels based on White Wolf Game Studio's World of Darkness setting. September marks the reissue of Lankhmar: Fafhrd & The Grey Mouser by the late Fantasy legend Fritz Leiber. And in November we introduce a new series that will showcase original fiction by today's most talented writers.

Strange worlds occupy the infinite multiverse. They are worlds very much like the Earth we know — worlds that, but for a few differences, could be our own. Visit an Earth where historical fact is turned on its head: slavery remains a practice in the United States, The Great War is fought from huge airships, and the Russian Revolution proves a failure! These are the alternate realities witnessed by Oswald Bastable, a man out of time.

This fourth volume in Michael Moorcock's epic, revised for its first U.S. edition, introduces Oswald Bastable, former captain of the 53rd Royal Lancers and Special Air Police, as he is guided through alternate worlds by the Red Republican chrononaut, Una Perrson.
